Heritage Bank & Trust Donates To Make Today Count Cancer Support Group of Lawrence County

(July 3, 2017) — Heritage Bank & Trust donated $250 to the Make Today Count Cancer Support Group of Lawrence County last week.

Make Today Count Cancer Support Group of Lawrence County is a Tennessee non-profit that develops, establishes, coordinates, and performs the functions of a cancer support group for individuals having ties to Lawrence County. Make Today Count also provides educational opportunities to community members and those who have been diagnosed with cancer.

"As the president of the Make Today Count Cancer Support Group of Lawrence County, I know first hand the impact that our organization has on cancer patients that live in Lawrence County," says Heritage Bank & Trust Loan Processor Gayla Glass. "I'm proud to work for an organization that supports local not-for-profit organizations."

Make Today Count is administered strictly by volunteers and has no paid employees. Make Today Count is able to impact the lives of cancer patients in Lawrence County by the generous donations received from benefactors and supporters.

"Our largest donation came as a Will bequest from a Lawrence County resident whose life had been touched by cancer," says Partner in the Law Firm Boston, Holt, Sockwell & Durham, PLLC, Ben Boston. "She wanted to help others in similar situations after her death."

Make Today Count's board members would like to thank the Lawrence County community for helping to support the mission of making a difference in the lives of cancer patients in the Lawrence County community.
